WHY Doxford?

Some things never go out of fashion. Doxford Hall has been hosting stylish celebrations for over 200 years. On top of stunning looks and period elegance, Doxford Hall has been awarded four AA red stars*, and is the only venue in Northumberland which boasts this accolade.

Built in 1818, the much-loved Hall was designed by famous local architect, John Dobson, most well-known for his vision for Newcastle Grand Railway Station. The resulting house was the epitome of late Georgian splendour, its grand design and detailing typical of the period and the venue is often likened to settings from romantic novels of bygone eras. Crafted from mellow stone, with its formal gardens and manicured lawns, featuring Europe's largest yew tree maze, Doxford Hall is a dreamy, romantic and photogenic venue, and one of Dobson's finest houses in the area.

In more modern times Doxford Hall plays its part in numerous love stories by providing an unforgettable setting for couples' special days. Licensed for civil ceremonies and partnerships, the Hall's classical interiors offer couples a choice of spectacular options depending on the style, size and seasonality of their wedding. Country house style runs throughout, with each area having its own individual character, featuring light-filled spaces, high ceilings and sumptuous interiors, with some original artwork and antiques adding to the elegance of this wonderful venue.

A sweeping driveway leads you up to the Hall through the ten acres of grounds. To the front are formal gardens beyond a stone terrace, with classical stone features and wrought iron gateways giving rise to enchanting photo opportunities. Beyond, discover pathways with wild flower planting and ancient trees, leading to the yew tree maze and a secret walled garden, with espaliered trees.

* 'Red star' status is granted only to the very best properties in British Isles delivering excellence throughout and an outstanding level of hospitality within each of the star categories.
